

The Bulletin of a recent date thus speaks of the prospects of trade in the Bay City. As that paper is the recognized commercial authority of the city the article appended will be of interest to all business men:

Thus far this year, general business in this city has not been as active or prosperous as for the same time last year. The absence of the usual rains in November and December, and the small quantity which has been received since the opening of the year, has resulted in a conservative policy among traders, which has of course greatly restricted the volume of business. There has also been more discrimination in the matter of credits, and a larger number of failures than for the opening months of previous years. So numerous and burdensome have these commercial suspensions become, that steps are being taken to ascertain if measures cannot be provided to prevent their frequency. At a meeting of whole sale merchants a few days ago, a committee was appointed to look into the matter. This committee will report at an adjourned meeting to be held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce to-morrow, at 2 P. M. We have not seen the report prepared by the committee, but hope that it comprises an investigation into the causes of the numerous failures throughout the Pacific States and Territories during the first two months of the year. We are sure that two prominent reasons for some of these failures will be found in overtrading and mismanagement. Creditors have a right to demand a thorough investigation into the causes of insolvency. The spirit of overtrading pervades all departments of mercantile life. Every merchant is anxious to develop a large line of custom as possible, and some are not as careful as they ought to be in reference to the financial abilities of their patrons. It is a comparatively easy matter to sell goods and swell an account; it is not so easy to collect the cash. Successful merchants pay close attention to the settlement of bills, while doing all they can to increase the sale of goods. There is no sense in these long credits. It is discounting the future at too heavy a cost. A safer policy is to do less and nearer a cash basis. Another bad feature in mercantile circles is the minding speculation mania. We fear this is more general than it ought to be, and that it may be a contributing cause of some of the business failures of the past two months. A merchant whose stock of goods is paid for, and who has some surplus cash, has a right to use that cash in minding stock operations, if he chooses; but where he is trading in part on the credit of others, he has no more right to use what belongs to his creditors in speculative ventures. In the long run there is more real prosperity in reserve for the merchant who attends to the details of his store or warehouse, than for those who try to combine merchandizing with stock jobbing. Even those who make a specialty of following stocks are not generally prosperous, as the numerous failures among that class show, and the chances for others are of course less favorable.

PROPAGATION OF FOOD FISHES.—Senator Sargent succeeded at the last session in procuring an adequate appropriation for continuing the work of the propagation of food fishes, and has since secured a promise from Professor Baird, Commissioner, that a larger number of shad and white fish will be sent to stock California rivers than last year, when 500,000 white fish and 120,000 young shad were sent. Some new varieties of carp, obtained from Germany, will be also sent to California. The beneficial effects of the Fish Commission are already widely apparent on the eastern side of the continent. Salmon and shad are appearing in great numbers where for years they have been strangers, and, by the consequent reduction of prices, these wholesome articles of food are being rapidly brought into the reach of all classes.

RENO'S OPPORTUNITIES.

Opportunities made the most of, are the seeds from which spring success. Opportunities neglected, bear fruit in disappointment, and the contempt of our fellow men. We believe that the present time, and the coming Spring is, and will be, rich in opportunity for Reno. We believe that if this is improved, it will bear golden fruit through a long future. Certain advantages Reno has which are lasting. It is centrally located in a rich country, and has easy communication with all of the county. It has the hearty sympathy and good will of the great majority of people in the county. The present brings to it temporary advantages. It has suffered less than almost any other place in the State from financial panic, and from dullness of trade. It will enter the Spring of 1877 well prepared to crowd its several business enterprises, while other places will be to some extent, crippled by the disasters of the Winter. This temporary advantage may be made the foundation of increased prosperity, if improved. Paying comparatively low rents, which are likely to be further reduced, and reasonable rates for help, our business men are better able to compete with rivals in other places. They should at once prepare for the Spring trade by laying in full, carefully selected, and prudently purchased stocks of goods. It ought to be able as a rule to make better terms for goods than can be made by men more closely pressed by hard times. Buying wisely, with low rents, and no exorbitant clerk hire to pay, Reno merchants should be able to sell lower than their competitors. This fact should at once be made known all over this country, and in each parts of adjoining counties as naturally belong to our parish of trade. It should be understood in every neighboring village and hamlet, and in every house in the western part of the State and Northern California, that Reno offers as great a variety of goods as may be found in Western Nevada, and at the lowest living prices. United and intelligent effort among our business men will be needed to carry out such a plan; but the effort made will draw to our town an immense increase of business; business which naturally belongs here, and business which can be easily kept here; by such dealing as will convince customers from abroad, that they can do better here than elsewhere.

POPULATION OF GERMANY.

Since the defeat of France at Sedan we have been inclined to look at the German Empire as one of immense size and strength; yet this formidable military power is not so populous as the United States. From the census taken last December, as we learn from an exchange, we find the population to have been 42,727,844. This shows an increase of about one per cent. over the census of 1870—before the war with France. During the last sixty years the population of Prussia, the controlling State of Germany, has increased 150 per cent., but even this is not so rapid as the previous increase of that country in population, while it was the Electorate of Brandenburg, and whose monarchs adopted the wisest policy in all contemporary Europe—a policy of absolute toleration, and liberal aid to immigration, by means of which the country was most rapidly built up. The northern States of Germany have grown far more rapidly than Southern, and the cities relatively much faster than the rural districts. In Baden the increase of population in six years was only 3 per cent., while in Hamburg it was 11 per cent., and in Bremen 16 per cent. The Protestant population of the Empire has increased twice as rapidly as the Catholic since the last census. This can be accounted for in the hostility of Emperor William and Count Bismarck against the Catholic church. One reason, perhaps, for the late increase of population in Germany, has been the decided check given to emigration by the Government itself, as it wished to retain all its young and able-bodied men for soldiers. Again, the continuance of hard times in this country has discouraged and checked German emigration. To these causes, mainly, can we attribute the increase of population in Germany.

There were extracted from the Chollar last week 692 tons of ore and 735 forwarded to the mill. The assay value of the ore mined was $25 per ton.

THE FRENCHMAN AND THE FOX.

A Man Mistaken for a Fox and Seriously Injured.—The Dangers of "Pot" hunting.

Last Saturday a Mr. Hughes, an old and well-known resident of Washoe valley was shot and seriously injured by a Frenchman who mistook him for a fox. We have the particulars in regard to the rather curious affair from George M. Nitcher of this city, who was over at Washoe lake on a hunting expedition.

A GOOD THING ON THE DUCKS.

It appears that the old gentleman, Mr. Hughes, had a good thing on the ducks. He had found a small pond where he could bag them by the dozen. This was a place excavated at the time of the erection of the old Ophir mining works—a large pit scooped out in digging clay for the manufacture of bricks. At this place he had killed no less than forty-six ducks at three shots. This success induced him to construct a regular "blind" in which to lie in wait for his feathered prey.

Was made by digging a hole and planting about it a screen of sagebrush, willows, and weeds, leaving a small opening through which to watch the pond.

While Mr. Hughes was lying in his hiding-place last Saturday, a Frenchman from Franktown, who is a great hunter, and who, it appears, also knew of the "gamey flavor" of the pond, happened along. He saw no ducks on the water, but soon caught sight of Mr. Hughes' head at the opening of the "blind." The old gentleman has a long white beard and wears a fur cap. Seeing this fur cap and white beard wagging about the Frenchman concluded that he had before him a silver fox, lying in wait for the ducks frequenting the place. He, therefore,

And with excellent aim, filling the left side of the old man's face, his left shoulder and his left side with duck shot. But for Mr. Hughes' making a hasty entry, the Frenchman would probably have turned home with his second barrel. The wounded man was taken to Reno for surgical treatment. When Mr. Nitcher left Washoe Valley the probable result of the shot was not known, but it was thought that the old gentleman's wounds would not prove fatal.—Enterprise, 14th.

The Twelfth Industrial Exhibition of the San Francisco Mechanics' Institute is to open on the seventh of August next, and there is good reason to anticipate that it will not only surpass in magnitude and interest any previously held under the auspices of the Institute, but, the Centennial excepted, will be one of the grandest exhibitions ever made in the country, gathering not only everything of greatest interest representing the natural, industrial and art productions of the Pacific Coast, but many of the finest and most interesting productions of other portions of the country and the world. It has long been recognized by those familiar with the character and management of industrial exhibitions all over the world that few equal in interest those that have been held under the management of the San Francisco Mechanics' Institute, and the past experience and the improved resources of the Directory insure us a grand exhibition this season, succeeding that of the great Centennial show.

THE WEAVER AND THE TOWN.—Yesterday being a beautiful Spring day, Eureka was lively. The number of discharged hands from the mines sent us an increased population, and the citizens crowding to the churches, morning and evening, filled the streets with well dressed and happy throngs. There are but few frontier towns, with so large and varied a population, where such good order reigns as in Eureka. Our floating population, though from almost every known nationality, is generally composed of hard working men, who have come here to seek their fortunes; most of them from States and countries where education and public morals have laid a good foundation, and whose early habits and training have not been forgotten. We have really but little of the pure "hooligan" element, and probably fewer cases of disorder than any camp of the same size in the mountain country.—Eureka Republican, of the 12th.

The new $750,000 Boston church is located in a novel way. The entire basement has been taken for a chamber for warming and distributing the air, which is done by five immense stoves, the consumption of which is about a ton of coal a day. The air in the basement, as fast as it is warmed, rises through nearly three hundred openings, scattered about the floor of the auditorium, and neatly concealed under the ends of the pews.

The new Hotel de Ville, in Paris, will be finished by the end of this year. The walls are already up to the first story. The reconstruction of the Tuilleries has also been agreed upon. The idea seems to be to efface the marks left by the Commune by the time that the great Exhibition of 1878 is held.

TELEGRAPHIC MELANGE.

MOST IMPORTANT ITEMS IN YESTERDAY'S DISPATCHES.

Hampton Don't Want any New Election.

New York, March 14.—The Herald's Washington special says: Judge Mackey says this evening, concerning Patterson's plan for a new election, that he is authorized to speak for Hampton, and to say that he would utterly refuse to agree to a new election, as not only was he elected, but his title has been affirmed by the courts.

The Georgia Election.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 14.—Reports from the Ninth Congressional District are meager, but the indications are that Bell, the regular Democratic nominee, is elected by a fair majority over Speer, the Independent Democrat, and Archer, the regular Republican. Official figures are slow coming in, and the election may be close.

New Hampshire Election.

CONCORD, March 14.—Later returns do not change the relative vote for Governor. The majority will probably be 3,500 for Prescott in the First Congressional District. Twenty-five towns have not been heard from. Those returned give Marlson 10,879 and Jones 10,460. The Republicans believe that Marlson is elected by a small plurality. The Democrats confidently claim the District.

Patterson's Plan.

New York, March 14.—A World's Washington special says Patterson's plan has been submitted in place of a mission to the South, headed by Vice President Wheeler, and is well received. Patterson says if Nicholls and Hampton don't accept Hayes will recognize their opponents. The Southern Democrats unitedly oppose the proposition.

Honors to John McCullough.

St. Louis, March 14.—John McCullough was entertained at a banquet here last night, given in his honor by leading citizens of this city. He was also the recipient of a gold medal appropriately engraved, expressing the high regard in which he is held by St. Louis.

Key's Introduction to Thompson.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—As the new Secretary of the Navy was leaving his hotel this morning for the depot he was suddenly accosted by a gentleman who said: "Is your name Thompson?" The reply was, "Yes." "Well," said the stranger, "my name is Key. We are both in the Cabinet. Let us be friends." They shook hands in the old-time style. Thompson remarked: "I know we will be much better friends with such an introduction than if we had been more formally presented to each other."

Wanted, Money for the Army.

New York, March 14.—A Times Washington special says the President rather inclines to the opinion that the army can be fed, clothed and equipped under the existing law, and he would prefer to call an extra session of Congress for no purpose but to provide for its pay. In conversation with a gentleman upon the subject of an extra session he gave this view of the question distinctly. He said he had not yet fully matured his opinion, and added that he was considering the feasibility of borrowing money for the pay of the army on much the same plan as Morton did in Indiana during the war.

Tassey Stewart's Trial.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—Tassey Stewart was placed on trial in the U. S. Circuit Court yesterday, on a charge of having attempted to bribe the Secretary of the Interior (Chandler) by offering him $300 to decide a land case in his favor. The defence was that Stewart, who had claims to land in connection with a number of others, had not sought to bribe a Government official, but had merely offered him the money to pay the expenses of bringing the question to a decision quicker, as the matter had been under consideration for a long time. The jury, after being out a short time, brought in a verdict of "Not guilty," and defendant was released.

Last Sunday there were received at the Mint in Carson 122 bars of fine bullion for coinage. It came from the United States Refinery in San Francisco.

Monday ask me what the word means, and not a few have requested me to explain the word, and for their gratification if not their satisfaction we propose to show you what the word means.

It should be written as a compound word—Bull-dozor. The primary meaning of bull comes from the root in the Anglo Saxon, bellan, to bellow, roar, bark. The borrowed or third idea, is of a person who operates in stocks so as to depress the market and then reap the profits of the necessary reaction of the market. Thus the Wall street bull means one to effect his purpose. The Latin bulla root signifies anything rounded by art. The seal appended to the edicts of the Pope. The bulls of Leo declared how inflexible the court of Rome was in the point of abuses.—Atterberg.

The third or borrowed meaning of "bull," the proper idea when connected with the affix dozor, is a contradiction, more exactly an apparent congruity, but a real incongruity, rounded by art—an accomplished hypocrisy. E. G., the abstract idea of an universal particular, a Christian thief, an honest returning Board. Anything that is a contradiction, an incongruity is a bull. Remembering this let us for a moment look at the derivation of the affix, dozor. The cr gives the possessive case, and not properly in the consideration of this word. The root is dozor, from A. S. "dwases." Pope says:

Chiefless armies dozed but away campaigns. The second meaning of doze as V. T. is borrowed from the idea expressed in the Latin Morphus, sleep. Now put the two reflected thus together and we have the exact meaning of bull-dozor.

They left him sometimes dozed and beamed says South. Dozen means Stupefied Bull means incongruity. Putting the two together we have the correct meaning "Stupefied by an incongruity."

You, of course, have no sympathy with those persons who cannot make a distinction in the meaning of a name. Connection, manner and place of a name effects different grades and shades of the significance of a name.

We need not at once think of the King of bores when we speak of that beautiful bird known as the bull doze. And when the bull of Wall street is referred to revert our mind to the representative of the great heads of the Hyeon of the prairie in the Zoological Garden. And when the boys cry out lustily on Saturday morning, "Hoes the Bull dozer," don't you think there is a competition in the matter. Use your discriminating powers and think as you smile blandly, not of the barn yard on the old farm, but "get up higher," if in no other way climb up. And when the word comes to you anon, pay the newsboy three cents and as you settle back in the old farm chair, and your eyes rests on the euphonious heading, try it over to yourself softly "Stupefied by an incongruity."

RATHER FISHY.

The Presidential Election of Messrs. Fair and Lindsay and Master Jimmy Fair.

[Virginia Chronicle, 12th April]

Mr. Tritle, Robert Lindsay and Master James Fair went on a fishing expedition a few days ago. They camped on the babbling Truckee, where the green waters glided, and made preparations to exterminate the piscatorial inhabitants of the stream. Young James, with a pole 20 feet long, launched his line into the down-streaming flood and got foul of a snag with the first cast. Bracing himself, he threw his whole weight on the pole and the snag springing back, gave him the impression that a leviathan was about to pull him into the stream, and he called for help, at which time his pole broke and he sat down in a brawling which was fortunately handy. Mr. Tritle then induced him to go with him and find but while Mr. Lindsay hooked a dead fish at the end of his line and threw it into the stream. On his return, Master Fair hauled out the fish and fearing that it might get away pounded it on the head to keep it quiet. But Mr. Lindsay did more than that. His favorite bait is a bull frog, and he cast a long line, which dispenses with a pole. After casting his line on this occasion he pulled out a cigar and began to smoke. At the end of an hour's patient watching he concluded to pull in the line and examine the bait. He began to haul in the slack, when he suddenly found that its course turned in and the end was up the bank. Following it up about ten yards, he came across the bull-frog with the line attached sitting complacently on a stump, the reptile having crawled out fully an hour before. At least this is the story that Master Fair tells of the remarkable fisher. The party distributed their fish among the poor of Virginia on their return and made hundreds of destitute families happy.

The death of Gen. Von Steinwehr, of Cincinnati, a few days ago, is a good advertisement for the life insurance companies. He had insured his life only last October for $20,000 each in the New York Mutual, Germania and Connecticut Mutual companies.

BEECHER says he takes more comfort in one sermon than a dozen lectures, but he thinks the latter are necessary as a part of public education, and is willing to do his share of the work—for $40,000 a season.
